

North Carolina Racial Equity Network Fall Webinar

NC Racial Equity Network's Fall Webinar will address essential storytelling strategies and new ways of conceptualizing the role that identities play in the stories we tell. This program will include a 90-minute session on the intersection of narrative defense and racial justice by a leader in the field, Creative Writing Professor and Capital Mitigation Specialist Leslie Jill Patterson, followed by a 60-minute ethics session (pending bar approval) on the ethics of interracial and intraracial representation by UNC Law Professor and Civil Rights Clinic Director Erika Wilson. Thanks to the generous support of the Office of Indigent Defense Services and the Z. Smith Reynolds Foundation, this program is provided free of charge to participants. NC REN graduates receive priority registration until September 7th, and general registration will be open until September 22nd or until spaces are filled

Friday, September 24, 2021

11:00 to 12:30	Narrative Defense and Racial Justice [90 min.] Leslie Jill Patterson, Professor of Creative Writing, Texas Tech University
12:30 to 1:00	BREAK
1:00 to 2:00	Storytelling and the Ethics of Interracial and Intraracial Representation [60 min. Ethics] Erika Wilson, Professor of Law, UNC School of Law

CLE HOURS: 1.50 General, 1.00 Ethics (Pending Approval)